THE PERFORMERS

The Langley Children's Chorus:

This award winning group is appearing for the 4th straight year as part of the special Langley Christmas Bureau fund raising show. Organized 11 years ago in the Langley School District, the chorus provides an enrichment program for those wishing to sing at a high musical level, using a variety of musical styles and languages. This February they will perform for the B.C. Music Educator's Conference. Directed by Mrs. Patti Thorpe and Ms. Kim Hardy, the accompanist is Mrs. Heather Hicks.

The Peace Arch Chapter of the Sweet Adelines International:

Founded in 1927, the Peace Arch Chorus, directed by Leslie West, is a highly sought after choral group which provides a pleasurable outlet for those who enjoy singing and performing. They invite women of all ages to their rehearsals @ 7:30 PM, Wednesdays, Northwest Langley Baptist Church. Watch for announcements of coming appearances!

Pacific Salt Celtic Folk Group:

Already a local favorite, the Emmens and Luiten families perform a marvelous variety of Celtic and folk music at venues throughout the lower mainland. Formed ten years ago, their performing skills keep the group as fresh and exciting as the day it was founded. Keep an eye peeled for their latest CD release!

The Langley Ukulele Ensemble:

Perhaps the most widely known and highly regarded musical youth group in Canada, the ensemble is scheduled to perform in Hawaii for the 10th straight year. (Talk about "carrying coals to New Castle"!) The 28 members, directed by Peter Luongo, range in age from 11 to 22, perform 80 shows per year (without affecting their schooling) and are producing a 9th CD! Members begin their training while in the third grade.

D. W. Poppy Senior Chamber Choir:

The premiere choral ensemble at Langley's D. W. Poppy Secondary School, the choir has performed at Carnegie Hall in NYC, the Pacific Rim Musical Festival in Hawaii and is scheduled to appear at Festival 2003 in St. John's, New Foundland . Under the direction and guidance of Mrs Deidre Baird, they perform classic, folk, medieval and "pop" music.

The Langley First Capital Barbershop Chorus:

Founder and co-sponsor, with the Langley Advance News Paper, of the annual Langley Christmas Concert, this registered charity organization was founded in 1970 to provide a musical outlet for men in the Langley area. 80 members strong, it has received a number of awards from the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Singing in America, Inc. (SPEBSQSA). The Chorus' Remembrance Day shows and other local performances are heavily attended, offering fans a variety of musical 'treats'.

Chorus quartets sing their hearts out

Langley Advance News staff members Cheri Gray and Joan Patouillet were serenaded by Eric Janzen, Mike Frank, Bill Birtch, and Gord Nerland. The quartet will join other members of Langley's First Capital Barbershop Chorus in singing Valentine's messages throughout the Lower Mainland next week.

Sounds of love will fill the air this Valentine's Day, as local singers take to the road to spread romance and cheer.

Sweet treats, including Hershey's Kisses and special performances of the song Unforgettable, will be offered by ladies from Westcoast Harmony Chorus, including Shayna Steeves, Bernice Dean, Jane Lythgo, and Danna Tinney. Westcoast quartets will be "Express-Sing" the feeling of romance this Valentine's Day.

It will be an unforgettable day for recipients of a very special Valentine's message.

Singing telegrams complete with four-party harmony and sweet treats are being delivered this year by Westcoast Harmony Chorus and Langley's First Capital Barbershop Chorus.

This is the second year that the men from First Capital will be breaking up into quartets to brighten the day made especially for lovers.

"We're taking orders out to businesses and homes, and singing a couple of songs," said Eric Janzen, a member of the Special Blend quartet, which is an offshoot off First Capital.

Songs performed will be suitably "mushy," added singer Mike Frank, and will include favourites such as Let Me Call You Sweetheart and I Love You Truly.

Recipients will also receive a rose and a box of truffles from Langley's Chocolate Cottage.

First Capital will offer its singing Valentines on Feb. 14 and 15, and will perform in Delta, Abbotsford, Mission, and all points in between.

To book a First Capital quartet, call Valentine Central at 604-626-5131.

Money

raised from the event will help the chorus's charities, including the Langley Christmas Bureau and Uplands Elementary School's hearing impaired students.

"We enjoy it. We get all sorts of different reactions from our captive audiences," laughed First Capital spokesman Hal Pretty.

The barbershop chorus meets every Thursday at 7 p.m., at First Christian Reformed Church on 72nd Ave., and welcomes men who are interested in learning how to sing.

Local ladies will also be making the rounds by "Express-Sing" feelings of love on Feb. 14 and 15.

Members of Westcoast Harmony Chorus will be divvied up into quartets for a Valentine's marathon that will see them deliver 300 singing telegrams to offices, schools, constructions sites, warehouses, and stores.

The women will perform the song Unforgettable, and present recipients with a Valentine's treat that includes Hershey's chocolate Kisses.

Money raised from the event will help the Marguerite Dixon Transition House.

To order a singing telegram from the ladies of Westcoast Harmony, call 604-882-8662.

Westcoast Harmony is holding a membership drive on Feb. 5 and 12. Ladies interested in joining can call Heather at 604-873-3032.

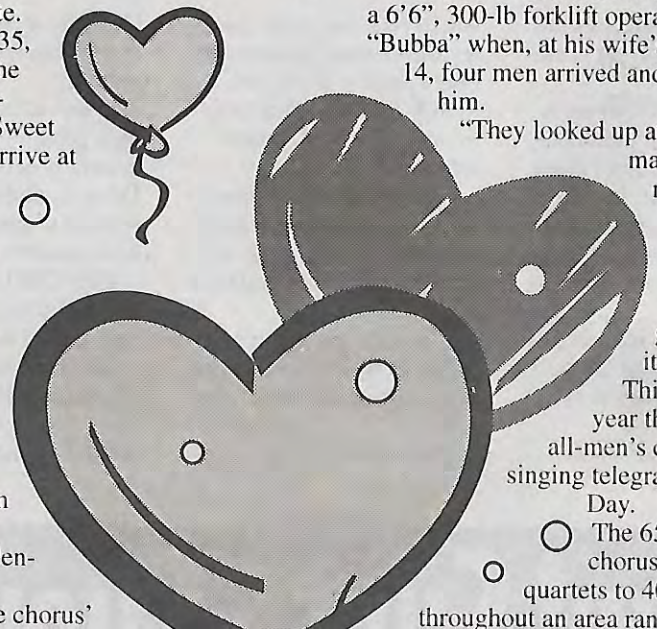
Bring on the Hearts & flowers

Treat your funny valentine to a singing telegram this February 14.

You can hit all the right notes with your sweetheart and keep the relationship running in perfect harmony this Valentine's Day.

All you need is love . . . and maybe an extravagant public display of affection.

A pair of local choruses are prepared to do their bit to help couples make beautiful music together, by offering up all the essentials of a heartfelt valentine — singing telegrams, flowers and, of course, chocolate.



For a fee of $35, a quartet from the West Coast Harmony Chorus (Sweet Adelines) will arrive at your sweetie's home, workplace or wherever you request, serenade them with a four-part, a cappella rendition of the song Unforgettable and present them with Hershey's Kisses and a Valentine's Day card.

The all-female chorus' singing telegrams have been delivered to women in bubble baths, beneath cars and to men on construction sites. The common thread is the recipient, almost without fail, "will get totally embarrassed or they'll cry," explains Steeves.

Generally speaking, she adds, "the women cry, the men get embarrassed."

But even the tough guys can get in on the act, says Hal Prittie, a member of Langley's First Capital Barbershop Chorus, another group offering Singing Valentines next Friday.

Prittie chuckles as he recalls the reaction of a 6'6", 300-lb forklift operator named "Bubba" when, at his wife's request last Feb. 14, four men arrived and began serenading him.

"They looked up at this monster of a man, handed him a rose and sang two loves songs to him," laughs Prittie.

"He was a real good sport about it."

This is just the second year the Langley-based all-men's choir is offering singing telegrams on Valentine's Day.

The 65-member men's chorus hopes to send quartets to 40 or 50 bookings throughout an area ranging from Crescent cover the entire Lower Mainland, including Langley, to raise money for their chosen cause — Burnaby's Marguerite Dixon Transition House.

"I have 13 quartets ready to go," confirms Shayna Steeves, of the West Coast Harmony Chorus.

Sixty jobs have already been booked, but the women can handle anywhere between 260 and 300 during what she expects will be a very busy Valentine's Day, beginning at 8 a.m. and carrying on to 9 p.m.

The 38-year-old, chorus, whose members range from 16 to 83, began offering Singing Valentines 13 years ago.

From Day 1, Steeves says, they've been a hit. Not only with the people who receive them, but for everyone within earshot.

"We'll have two or three quartets working downtown (Vancouver). They'll go into a high-rise office and by the time they're done singing, a crowd of 30 or 40 people will have gathered to listen," she says.

The women have sung to mechanics under-

For $45, recipients will be treated to two songs, selected from a three-song repertoire of Let Me Call You Sweetheart, Heart of My Heart and I Love You Truly. They will also receive a rose and some Chocolate Cottage truffles.

Quartets will bring disposable cameras to each assignment and the photos will be posted on the chorus Web site for people to download.

There's no charge for the pictures, says Prittie, adding it's part of the service provided for the fee.

Money raised will be used to fund the non-profit group's expenses.

Each year, the First Capital Chorus raises money for the Christmas Bureau and Uplands Elementary's programs for deaf and hard of hearing students.

"This is our fundraiser," Prittie explains.

Chorus sings for Christmas

Langley's First Capital Barbershop Chorus will be taking the stage along with several other musical groups to raise money for the Langley Christmas Bureau this holiday season.

by Erin McKay

Langley Christmas Bureau coordinator Joan Chesney was recently serenaded by First Capital Barbershop singers Leigh Anderson, Barry Weafer, Clint Davies, and Eric Champ at The Langley Advance News office on 64th Ave. The Advance News, which is a drop-off point for Christmas Bureau donations, is sponsoring First Capital's fundraising concert for the Bureau on Dec. 19. Advance News photo by Erin McKay

Four years ago, Eric Champ read that Langley's First Capital Barbershop Chorus was looking for men to sing at a special concert.

The show would not only evoke the spirit of Christmas through song, but would raise money for a worthy cause: the Langley Christmas Bureau.

"It was so the needy kids in Langley would have a better Christmas," said Champ. "That touched my heart. That's the reason I joined the chorus."

"Once I got there, I couldn't leave," he said.

Champ and the dozens of men who make up the First Capital Chorus will once again stage their Sounds of Christmas concert to raise funds for the Bureau.

The event, which is sponsored by The Langley Advance News, will be held Friday, Dec. 19, 7:30 p.m., at the Chandos Pattison Auditorium.

The concert will feature performances by the Langley Ukulele Ensemble, Langley Children's Chorus, Peace Arch Sweet Adeline Chorus, the West 49th Quartet, and First Capital, which will be welcoming the Christmas Community Men's Chorus.

Tickets for the show are available at the Christmas Bureau until Dec. 18.

The Men's Chorus was formed when first Capital put out a call for 100 men to join them for the festive occasion.

The Bureau, which supplies families in need with food, toys, and gifts at Christmas time, is set up at #107 20151 Fraser Hwy. in the Save-On-Foods/Valley Centre Mall. Money raised through the concert will help the Bureau launch next year's campaign, and allow it to buy groceries and gift certificates.

First Capital has been holding the fundraising Christmas show since 1998, and has raised more than $26,000 for the Bureau.

The Barbershop Chorus, which has been operating in Langley for 30 years, not only encourages men to sing, but to help out in the community.

The Chorus is a member of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America, a group that helps those who are hearing impaired.

For several years, First Capital raised funds for Uplands Elementary School, and in the past year gave a substantial donation to Aldergrove Elementary for the school's music program.

"What the focus will be in the future we're not sure," said Chorus member Leigh Anderson, "but our largest effort is for the Langley Christmas Bureau."

> "It was so the needy kids in Langley would have a better Christmas."

This year, First Capital expects to raise more than $7,000 at the Christmas concert, which will once again be held at the Chandos Pattison Auditorium at the Pacific Academy, located north of Hwy. 1.

"The money they present to me in January is our kick-off for the 2004 campaign," said Langley Christmas Bureau coordinator Joan Chesney. "We always like to have that. It is our security."

Those wanting to donate $25 or more to the Bureau during the concert will be eligible for tax receipts.

People who want to attend the show are encouraged to purchase tickets in advance at the Bureau, as the event usually sells out.

First Capital, which rehearses Thursday evenings at the Christian Reformed Church on 72nd Ave., is also gearing up to provide singing telegrams for Valentine's Day, and is planning a spring show featuring songs of the 1950's and 60's.

The Chorus is always looking for new members. Call 604-530-8730 or visit www.firstcapitalchorus.com.

Langley's First Capital Barbershop Chorus is offering singing valentines in four-part harmony this Feb. 13 and 14. It's the third year the men's chorus has held the fundraiser which purchases music and equipment for the group. In front (from left) are: Hal Prittie, Don Dickson, Gord Harris and Neil Hamilton. The chorus practises each Thursday night at the First Christian Reformed Church at 205 Street and 72 Avenue and always enjoys an audience.

Heard it in a Love song

That is in their heart

Sometimes, those three little words just don't tell the whole story.

Or maybe, each time you try to utter them your mouth dries up like cotton and your brain turns to mush.

This Valentine's Day there's help for the terminally tongue-tied, the pathologically shy, the emotionally reticent and the hopelessly romantic.

Langley's First Capital Barbershop Chorus is once again offering singing valentines as the perfect way to say 'I love you' to that special someone, even when words desert you.

This is the third year that the 80-member all-male chorus has offered the musical messages of love — a service presented in four-part harmony.

All day on Feb. 13 and 14, quartets are available to come to homes, businesses, restaurants or anywhere clients ask them to meet.

For a $50 fee, they will sing two songs, Heart of My Heart and Let Me Call You Sweetheart, and present the recipient with a long-stemmed red rose and two chocolate truffles.

"They (the songs) are perennial favourites," says Hal Prittie, a three-year member of the chorus.

Whether their performance gives rise to blushes or tears, "It's always a powerful emotional experience," notes chorus member Clint Davies.

Even people who are embarrassed by the attention appreciate the sentiment behind it, the men say.

"We've never yet been thrown out of a place," chuckles Davies, who is in his sixth year with the group.

The Valentine's Day singing telegrams raise funds for the chorus, which holds three events each year, including a December performance in support of the Langley Christmas Bureau and a concert to benefit programs for deaf and hard-of-hearing children.

Money raised each February for the chorus helps purchase equipment for the group which recently spent $8,000 on new risers alone.

It also pays for the group's sheet music which, the men are proud to point out, is 100 per cent legitimately obtained.

"Every copy is registered," stresses Davies. "When you're talking about 100 copies, it gets costly."

"At the end of the day, we're non-profit," says Davies.

Any net funds are given to schools to help with their music programs, he explains.

Apart from asking that the cash be put toward music education, the men give the money with no strings attached.

"We tell the music teacher, here's $500, spend it however you want," says Prittie.

The First Capital Chorus generally enters two singing competitions each year, but that isn't their primary focus, the men stress.

"We're a community chorus first, and competitive second," says Davies.

"We sound pretty good and have a lot of fun in the community."

This year, Valentine's Day promises to be twice the fun as the chorus extends its singing telegram service over two days, Friday, Feb. 13 and Saturday, Feb. 14.

Last February, the First Capital Chorus quartets presented 56 singing valentines, but in 2004 the group hopes to book about 100 performances between 8 a.m. and 9 or 10 p.m. each day, depending on demand.

"I bought 96 roses this year — de-thorned this time," says Prittie.

"Last year, the guys were getting stabbed as they reached into the bucket," he laughs.

The chorus is now booking quartets to sing within an area ranging from North Delta to Aldergrove, between the Fraser River and the U.S. border

To book a singing valentine from the First Capital Barbershop Chorus, call them at 604-878-9332 and leave a message.

Someone will return the call within a few hours, promises Prittie.

The men suggest leaving a number they can call in confidence, to avoid spoiling the surprise.

Says Davies: "The surprise aspect of this adds power to it."

Our chorus is fortunate to have two directors with almost 50 years of barbershop experience between them.

Mike Wilcox
Director

They lead by example showing the love and fellowship found while singing in the quartets and chorus of the Langley Chapter.

Danny Tryon
Co-Director

The past year has been one of growth, both in membership, but also in musical knowledge. We have recently completed a six week music education program for our entire chorus, which entailed forty-five minutes each night of training in various aspects of the Barbershop hobby. We had set a goal of being the most improved chorus in Division 1, and partly through this music education program, were able to achieve our goal!

We are continuing to increase our membership, and are looking forward to another year with even higher goals. We are looking forward to learning some very exciting new music, and hope to represent our division in the upcoming District competition in Spokane.

As always, we welcome your visit to our Thursday night meetings. If you want more music in your life we just may be able to help! Hope to see you soon!

Yours for a song

Mike

I am proud of the Langley Chorus, which has grown steadily each year to now boast 80 members. Men are attracted to our group because of our approach to singing and our willingness to share our joy and knowledge with the ordinary singer.

Our music program is varied to allow a good balance between getting ready for two or three shows each year, attending contests, and promoting quartet activities.

A goal of the directors and music team is to improve our level of singing by encouraging development of the individual singer.

Our repertoire is large and reflects the diversity of this chorus with war songs from the 40's, Doo-whop sounds of the 50's and good old barbershop standards.

Come out some Thursday night and experience a great time with some great guys.
